Departments to Decide On Use of Preceptors

Barzun Defines Status Of Part-Time Instructors

The use of preceptors will be decided upon by individual departments, Dean of Faculties and Provost Jacques Barzun '27 said yesterday in an interview.

Dean Barzun, who is directing the University-wide curriculum review which has established the rank of preceptor, said, "The choice of what preparation or experience a particular course requires is in the hands of those running the program."

Dean Barzun said he had "no ground for disagreement" with those who do not want to use preceptors.

He said that there has been a great deal of "misconception" on just what a preceptor is. A preceptor will be a part time teacher, with one or two instead of the usual three course load. He will be a graduate student, in that he will have received his M.A. degree, but will still be actively working toward his Ph.D. degree. He will receive a salary of approximately $3000, plus tuition exemption, bringing his total earning only $100 short of an instructor's salary, Dean Barzun pointed out.

Dean Barzun said that the preceptor will be the same as an instructor, except that he will teach one less course while working actively for his final degree.

Critics of the preceptor system have said that they did not think the decrease in course load would give a teacher that much extra time to work on his graduate studies.

Dean John G. Palfrey and the Columbia College Committee on Instruction have said that they do not think the preceptor would be suitable for teaching general education courses.

New Hall Elevator Will Be Improved

By Neil Edward Silver

The Residence Halls Office, at the urging of an Undergraduate Dormitory Council Committee headed by Richard Toder '62, has taken steps to increase the effectiveness of the elevator service in New Hall.

One major change will be the addition of weight limiting devices to the two elevators which open into the New Hall lobby. At present though the elevators are often filled on the ground floor, they continue to stop at other floors. With the new devices the elevators will bypass

Engineering Deans Oppose CC, Humanities Preceptors

By Robert Horowitz

The Dean's Office of the Engineering School is "very likely" to support the College's Committee on Instruction in opposing the use of preceptors to teach Contemporary Civilization and Humanities

Newspaper to Reappear Without School's Help

By Jacques J. Gorlin

The University of Pennsylvania has lifted its suspension of The Daily Pennsylvanian.

The Pennsylvanian, which resumes publication today with a six page issue, had last been published on Friday, Feb. 23.

In a statement released yesterday, the university authorized the resumption of the paper "without financial support from the men's student government until the expiration of the term of office of the paper's present senior editorial board on March 8."

The newspaper had amassed a profit during the year, and it, therefore, had enough money in reserve to permit the publication of the Pennsylvanian for the next week.

The fight over the publication of The Pennsylvanian has evoked much editorial comment from Ivy League newspapers. The Daily Princetonian was the only Ivy League newspaper which supported the university's suspension of the newspaper. The Princetonian did not see an abridgement of freedom of the press in the suspension of The Pennsylvanian. The other Ivy League newspapers did see such an abridgement, and reacted accordingly in their editorials.
